10. We are not going to impose upon you a long lecture, neither have we any apology to offer for thus presenting you this little work. We are not going to dip our pen in the ink-house and launch poetry for you, but we wish to come before you with honest Nature's own language, not unfold to you the truth as it is in medicine, the truth stripped of all its mystic covering and prejudicial influences. You have all your peculiar opinions with regard to medicine and the man who presents them. You have your favorite facts; when you select facts among others as being the most difficult, the selected one is chosen by your neighbor, who thinks your choice an ignorance, not observation. Thus the whole human family are divided in opinion not only in regard to the physiology of the individual, but have their differences in the choice of the various means of practice. Some of you believe in the old species practice, handed down to you from generation to generation, viz. blood-letting, cathartics, &c. Others have traditions of old material, viz. in Hints, &c. which is equivalent to giving the patient a severe letting alone. A third take the "Water-Cure Journal," and supplant all other sort of treatment, while a fourth stands with bala in one hand and hot-drops in the other, and avows allegiance to Therapeuticism as the science now in the vogue of the day. "And did we tuckin' all dis ob' it? It's an old-fashioned thing with dis ob' it." Thus we live in the midst of discrepancy and jargon, and despite the skill of these various varieties of medicine do not live out half our days. From time immemorial medicine has been a chaotic speculation and imposition. We are informed that Hippocrates was the god of medicine, but whether such games at parades ever existed, we have no authentic account; as his life is involved in fable, his biography this may be a temple was erected in dedication of his name, called the temple of Hippocrates, through the multitude resorted to get cured of the various maladies with which they were afflicted, the temple was to have been a temple where the gods of medicine or divine powers would dwell, was not going to have granted the symptoms of the discrepancy and cure, denoting Hippocrates, specified 400 years B.C., and who is called the father of medicine collected all the traditions current at the time and published different works on the pathology and cure of diseases, which were regarded then as revelations as much revered by our political physicians. Galen, who lived after Christ, entered the principles of Hippocrates, and held the views of the people in disagreement 1000 years. In the Islamic century, the medicine was still a new discovery, and the people held which were directed there, he original works of Galen and Hippocrates were the standard ones, and were still held as the only ones for Galen, the physician of Rome.

the cause of disease. The body is then, to preserve your disease, dyspepsia; a fourth calls to narrow debility. All admit that all, all patients thoroughly to understand your case; all patients you with a bill, and are very careful to collect their pay, but have not a sign nor a tear for your condition, leaving you alone tooth, gums, constipation and such, and while the grave is opening to receive your tortured remains, we ask: is it strange that we should doubt the skill of the physician?

Since the days of Adam the human family have been more or less afflicted with disease, and equally as antiquated is the adoption of certain remedies, for the same experience has taught the only method which has handed down to us any item of value, and by it alone can we establish anything like a correct system of medicine. In giving you our opinion as to the most rational mode of treating disease, we would first call your attention to what we consider the four great causes of, at least nine-tenths of the ills to which flesh is heir to, and which, like overbearing tyrants, "heavy mortals haunt." 1st. Intemperance in eating and drinking. 2d. Change of temperature in the climate, producing colds and their consequences. 3d. Impurity of the atmosphere. 4th. Congenital disease, or those diseases which are handed down from parents to children.

Intemperance habits.—The stomach is the great depot of nutriment— it therefore calls for nutritious food. Give it anything else and you inflict upon it a certain amount of injury. It may be injured also by giving it too much to do. The stomach requires rest as well as the worried horse after a hard day's toil, and he who is in the habit of eating too large a quantity, or too frequently, or indulging in unwholesome food, stimulating drinks, &c., will be disappointed if he expects to enjoy good health. On the contrary he predisposes himself to dyspepsia, general debility and a multitude of other diseases, which follow in the wake of such intemperance, the first great cause of which consists in having diminished the power of the digestive organ, manifested by a passive state of the bowels, derangement of the liver, loss of appetite, and consequent constipation. The patient laboring under such afflictions complains of pain in the side, pain between the shoulders, headache and giddiness, flashes of heat to the face, hands and feet, deranged taste in the mouth, especially in the morning, drowsiness through the day, nervous nervousness, producing intense suffering of mind, sometimes sleep, in short, rendering his life a burden to himself and his friends. How can he expect to do so, and yet one of all these difficulties can be surmounted to the great efforts of the stomach and liver, (and we defy the whole medical faculty to produce any rational objection,) what course of treatment do you suggest? The little A, B, C should be would reply, restore the strength of the stomach by the administration of a tonic and stimulate the liver to aid in the digestion of the food, obtain from the existing causes and you conquer all the associated diseases. You may take cod-liver oil, mineral and physics all your days, and pay your doctor's fees hundreds, but all to no purpose; the pale monster Death will gnaw at your veins, and the grave opens to receive you.

A safe and simple remedy is all that is necessary to effect a cure, and our honest convictions are in favor of Dr. Kewitt's Vegetable Tonic Mixture and Mergate Pills. We have seen enough to believe in that we cannot speak too highly in their praise or recommend them too strongly to the public. Suffering speak for themselves; their extensive demand for the last two years is without a parallel in the history of this city.

This Vegetable Tonic is a mild and powerful tonic, commencing vigor to the stomach and stimulating the whole alimentary system to a healthy and vigorous action; it is unparalleled in the cure of dyspepsia, indigestion, bilious diseases, and general debility.

It is a most powerful tonic, particularly in chronic affections of the liver, and where the stomach has been injured by the use of mercury—given in connection with the Mergate Pills, my cure is infallible. It is also indicated in the cure of other diseases above mentioned.

Dr. J. W. Knapp:—Dear Sir,—Having learned that you have complied with the wishes of your friends and are now preparing your invaluable Pills and Bitters, that the public at large may participate in the benefits to be derived from their use, I beg leave most cordially to bear testimony as to their powerful and salutary effects in removing disease, and restoring the system to health. I have for the last three years labored under the most intense suffering from disease of the Liver, Dyspepsia, and General Derangement of the Nervous System; from the recommendation of others I was induced to try your Pills and Bitters; in a very short time they wrought an efficient cure. I therefore cheerfully recommend them to all those who are suffering from the above complaints.

GEORGE HARRISON.

London, 12th Sept. 1852.

To Dr. J. W. Knapp:—Dear Sir,—I consider it a duty I owe to you and the public to give my testimony in favor of your Mandrake Pills and Vegetable Tonic Mixture, in the cure of disease. Two of my family were laboring under severe inflammation of the Liver, with loss of appetite, Constipation and General Debility—and from the use of your invaluable Pills and Bitters they were in a very short time restored to perfect health. I have known similar good results from their use in other very alarming cases, and cheerfully recommend them to the public.

To THE PUBLIC,—I take great pleasure in bearing testimony as to the powerful effects and good results resulting from the use of Dr. Knapp's Vegetable Tonic Mixture, in the cure of my wife who has been induced to the borders of the grave from Dyspepsia; she has taken only two bottles, and the result has been wonderful; she is restored to perfect health and vigorous body and mind.

SARAH LEWIS.

(To the Editor of the Western Planet.)

DEAR SIR:—Allow me, through the columns of your paper, to express my heartfelt gratitude to Dr. J. W. Knapp, of London, O. W., who, by the use of his Tonic Mixture and Mandrake Pills, has cured me of disease of the Liver of years standing. For the two and a half years previous to the month of June last, I had suffered much, and had become so far reduced by complete prostration of the nervous system as to be unable to leave my room without assistance; during which time I had employed the services of all the most eminent of the Medical Profession in this section of the country, and all to no purpose.

About the first of June last, I commenced the use of the medicines above named, continuing their use for three months, when, from being unable to turn myself in bed without assistance, I am now (thank Heaven and the instrument) entirely cured!

I cannot too strongly recommend the above medicines to persons suffering under like afflictions. Respectfully, to serve the cause of humanity, &c.

JOSEPH WOOD.

Harpend, O. W.

The above are only a few of the many acknowledgments in commendation of this valuable Bitters. In accordance with our division of the general causes of disease, we shall briefly notice, namely, that which we have called change of temperature, producing what is termed nervous colds, out of which arise the various types of inflammation, impairing the constitution and rendering it susceptible to disease in a multitude of forms. A few words with regard to the physiology of a cold, and we at once indicate the treatment indicated. The effect produced by a cold is first upon the surface of the body, in fact to close the pores of the skin, in accordance with the general law of nature, that heat expands substances and cold contracts them. The pores of the skin being closed, perspiration is checked, and thereby other communications within which is necessary to be thrown off through the medium of the pores of the skin; consequently, after that it is very difficult to remove other ways. The circulation, therefore, is to the lungs, and hence coughing and expectoration of mucus, it being nothing more than an effort of nature to expel this impure substance from the system.

Allow it to remain and it communicates disease to the lungs, hence the origin of consumption, &c. The disease is not the lungs in themselves, it is what you catch from them, a disease which may remain or later terminate in death. A strong experiment or cough medicine is all that is indicated, if taken in time. Our country has for years suffered with consumption, but since the introduction of Dr. Kerner's Vegetable Pulmonary Balm, they are on the alert, and we are sanguine in the anticipation that it will ere long rid us of these Yankee humbugs and be the means of prolonging the extent of our years and shortening our lives.

DR. J. W. KERNER'S VEGETABLE PULMONARY BALM.

A SAFE AND EFFECTUAL CURE FOR

Coughs, Colds, Hoarseness, Bronchitis, Asthma, Incipient Consumption, &c., &c.

This Balm opens by producing a free and copious expectoration, and by imparting vigor to the absorbent vessels changing them from a channel to a healthy action. Hundreds of cases might be related of persons who have been dragged to this grave by their medical attendants, and by the use of this valuable remedy are now in the enjoyment of perfect health.

Dose.—One teaspoonful from three to six times per day, or often if the cough is severe.

Price.—75 cents per bottle. Prepared, Wholesale and Retail, at the English Medical Dispensary Dundas St., London, G. W.

WITNESS TO THE CURE OF CONSUMPTION BY DR. KERNER'S VEGETABLE PULMONARY BALM.

Dr. J. W. Kerner:—Dear Sir,—Being informed that you are preparing your Vegetable Pulmonary Balm, in order that the public at large may appreciate its virtues, I cheerfully submit to you the following statements of fact,—use them as you think proper. In the autumn of 1858, my eldest son was attacked with pain in the chest, shortness of breath, accompanied with a very severe cough. We used every means within our power, employed the best skillful physicians, and after their vain attempts, had recourse to some of the most popular nostrums for the cure of consumption, but all to no purpose, he gradually grew worse. In 1859, he became so feeble and emaciated, as to be obliged to leave his bed; his food and legs became swollen, purplish, profusely at night, experienced night sweats, cold sweats, had chills and fever alternately, in short all who knew or saw him, pronounced him to be lost beyond the slightest hope of reviving any benefit; still, as you favored him with a hope, he commenced using your Balm, and after taking some half dozen bottles began slowly to recover, till in three months' time he was restored to perfect health. One year has elapsed since the cure was effected, and he is still hale and sound.

Ever grateful, I am, Dear Sir, yours respectfully, JAMES DICKINSON

Witness my hand and seal this 10th day of Sept. 1860.

The following certificate, from one who was given over to die of Consumption, and so related that he was unable to leave his bed, is only one of hundreds that can be furnished from well known parties.

This may certify that I have for the last two years been afflicted with some of the fearful symptoms Cough, spitting of pus, and sometimes blood. I tried many different medicines, but all to no effect, till some time ago, since I was recommended to try Dr. Kerner's Vegetable Pulmonary Balm, and I can truly say the change it has wrought in my system has been wonderful. I have recovered, being able to leave the bed at the end of the year, and am now in the enjoyment of perfect health. I cannot too strongly recommend the above medicine to persons afflicted with Consumption.

London, 10th April, 1861.

London, 10th Sept. 1860.

Witness my hand and seal this 10th day of Sept. 1860, and the day of the completion of my cure, with spitting of blood, cough, and all the symptoms of Consumption.

tion: I tried the different Symples and Potions in vain; the treatment of Physicians only seemed to aggravate the disease. I was recommended to try Dr. Kermott's Vegetable Pulmonary Symples, and thank Providence it has cured me; my cough is much relieved, and I am now tolerably recovered. I have to thank Dr. Kermott for his kind and timely assistance. I have been recommended to try Dr. Kermott's Compound Extract of Willow, and I have been cured by a fair trial.

We next call your particular attention to diseases brought on by impurities of the blood. Death suspended in air—how silent yet how dreadfully his aim. Above us and around us stand their and groans. Whether in the form of Plague, Putrid Fever, or Cholera, how innocently do we inhale their poisonous vapor and in that hamlet, town, and city where to-day joyously reign health and happiness, to-morrow we may behold them struggling in the arms of death. That a great number of the most formidable diseases take their origin from impurities existing in the air, is a fact well established as to need no proof, but whether we shall ever be able to forestall these maladies is something we are unable to determine; they have thus far triumphed over medicine and put at defiance the physician's skill.

Time and space will not permit us even to enumerate the different diseases brought on by the above cause, but we shall select the two most common among us, viz: Intermittents, more commonly known as Fever and Ague, Chill Fever, &c., and derangement of the bowels, such as Diarrhoea, Dysentery, &c. Bid us of these two forms of putrescence, and we are a happy people compared with our present situation. The justly celebrated Extract of Willow and Extract of Marsh-mallows have thus far proved themselves antidotes, and we have no hesitation in saying they will be long supplied all other articles of the kind.

DR. KERMOTT'S COMPOUND EXTRACT OF WILLOW,

Ague, Chill Fever, and all Bilious Diseases.

This Remedy is without a parallel, and for the last twelve months has been extensively used by all classes of Physicians, who acknowledge it to be superior, because safer and more efficient, than Quinine or any remedy now. We have their opinion in favor of supplying the use of Quinine, as soon as it becomes generally known. It is purely vegetable—taken from the species, Willow. A trial of one bottle will convince the purchaser of its intrinsic virtue in the cure of the above diseases.

Directions.—For Ague and Chill Fever, one tablespoonful three or four times per day, in the absence of fever. Dose for children accordingly.

In Bilious diseases, one teaspoonful three times per day, before meals, in connection with Dr. K's Stomachic Pills, one two or three times.

Price.—One Dollar per bottle. Prepared, Wholesale and Retail, at the London Medical Dispensary, Strand St., London, G. B.

This is to certify that I have sold two dozen bottles of Dr. Kermott's Vegetable Ague Remedy to a large number of men, working in my colliery on the Great Western Railway. Every bottle proved successful in curing the patients, and the men were invariably restored to health, and able to go to work immediately after taking the medicine. There has been no return of the Ague in any case, and the patients having elapsed since I sold the last bottle. I cheerfully recommend it to the public, and in my opinion unequalled.

Dr. K. is daily receiving orders from merchants and others for a large supply of the Willow. During the last season not less than 1,000 bottles have been sold, and of the same of Marsh-mallows. And equally as popular is

DR. KERMOTT'S COMPOUND EXTRACT OF BLACKBERRY, Diarrhoea, Dysentery, Cholera, Cholera Morbus, and all Diseases of the Stomach and Bowels.

Dr. K. has subjected this remedy to the test of some of the most scientific medical men both in Canada and the United States, who all with one voice acknowledge it to be superior to any other medicinal agent, in the cure of the above diseases. It is purely vegetable, acts promptly, and gives a healthy tone throughout the whole Alimentary Canal. It has proved successful in thousands of cases; and in the town of London and vicinity, during the summer of 1866, this valuable agent was administered to more than 500 patients, in the worst stages of summer complaints, all of which were effectually cured. Suffice it to say that, in five years' extensive practice, we have yet to learn of a single case of failure.

Directions.—Dose for an adult, one tablespoonful every two hours; and for children in proportion to their age.

Price.—2s. 6d. per bottle.

This is a sovereign remedy and might well be styled the Asclepius of the bowels. We consider it one of the greatest discoveries of the age; is perfectly safe and effectual, will cause no untoward consequences in the most delicate infant; does not check the action of the bowels by any stringent preparation, thereby producing constipation, but holds in restraint by an emollient; gently stimulates them to a healthy action, with the most happy effects in all diseases of the bowels. It is purely vegetable, taken from the wild Blackberry, with which every schoolboy has formed an acquaintance. We have not words to express its equineity in value; every family should be provided with it. By all means give it a trial.

We now come to our last division of the general axiom, viz: those who are handed down from parent to child. It is honorable, but nevertheless true, that we but in any instance the afflictions of our parents, live as they lived, die as they died, without ever having been the authors of a healthy constitution. Better had we never existed than to have been born at the expense of some violation of the laws of nature. It is a question whether we shall or shall not, even with strict adherence to the laws of health, ever eradicate these diseases from among us. All that we can do by way of medicinal agents, is to cleanse and purify the blood. At the head of medicines calculated to produce this effect, stands Sarsaparilla. The most celebrated physicians acknowledge it superior to any other known alternative. You will find a great deal of trash under the name of Sarsaparilla; We have been creditably informed that in one of the largest establishments in the United States, as soon as the article became popular, the Sarsaparilla was omitted. We know of but one preparation which we are positive contains Sarsaparilla, in addition to which you have the combined influence of Stillings, an invaluable article for restoring the constitution.

DR. J. V. KERMOTT'S FLUID EXTRACT OF SARSAPARILLA AND STILLINGIA.

Syphilitic, Scrofulous, and other Diseases.

And every variety of Painless Disease, resulting in the Lungs, and every other disease induced by the use of Mercury and other poisonous Drugs.

Be warned superior to any other preparation of Sarsaparilla ever yet invented.

To Dye a Red Scarlet Dress

Take a yellow hair in a hair brush, washed with water, the cloth, you will dye; then add one pint of water for every pound of cloth. Add a moderate quantity of red and one ounce of black. Composed (both previously mixed in a warm water) and dye the cloth in warm water, and when dyed, wash it in cold water, and the whole nearly as before, take the cloth out and stain it in cold water.

To Dye a Green.

For every pound of cloth add three and a half ounces of alum and one pound of fuchsine (not fast) till the strength is lost; wash the cloth till it becomes a good yellow, then remove the alum and add the Chrome Blue by degrees, till you have the desired color.

To Cure Hives.

To one thousand weight of honey, apply the following mixture, well rubbed on:—Five-olives of a barrel of fine salt, four pounds of vinegar, four ounces of red pepper, one-half gallon of molasses, and gallon of history water; let the honey be packed away for five weeks with which down, then smoke for three or four weeks with green history wood and tobacco stems, in such an order as to smoke, cover them with paper and when, and see them up in bags to protect them from heat.

Remedy.—Take a teaspoonful of anyone pepper, a tablespoonful of finely powdered molasses mixed with a quarter of a pound of brown sugar, and rub the whole of the inside of the hand, then wash away with Liverpool rock salt, taking care to cover them well up, let them remain in salt for three days, then wash up and smoke with green history every day or other water when they should be taken down and buried in history water, and continued to remain as directed.

A Song for Chapped Hands.

Take three ounces of palm oil, one ounce of nutmeg, and one ounce of an ounce of white wine; wash down the nut, and work it well till it is as smooth as pomatum, then drive the soap into and melt with the rest in a nipple. When it is thoroughly melted, add the palm oil, while it is melting, and take it off the fire as soon as it is thoroughly mixed with the other ingredients. Pour the whole into a vessel and keep stirring it till it is cool, or the soap will separate. Put it in your tin. Rub this well into the hands on going to bed (after having well washed and dried them), then put on a pair of white kid gloves, and it will very shortly make them soft and entirely prevent chapping. Applied to the feet in the same way, restoring a piece of linen instead of gloves, it prevents chapping.

To Make Hair Dye.

The Liquid Hair Dye is generally used, and nothing but the best of hair (which is white or grey) is wanted. There are certainly not a very desirable number of colors of hair, but like this. The powder dye are decidedly the best, as they do not stain the skin at all. There are many as follows:—Take any quantity of hair in a powder, and let it be thoroughly washed by having it soaked in the water two or three weeks in a dry place. Then mix it up with an equal quantity of cast oil, and let it stand for a week. Then wash it up with water, and then when washed through the hair, leaving it slightly moist by evening. It will turn the hair to one color, or to another color; or in a third way, and will keep it a long time without fading. Wash it out with warm water, and then wash it with cold water, and then wash it with cold water.

Arsenic. Marseus.—Tinctum Ferri Sesquichloridi, 1 drachm; apply to the warts with a camel's hair pencil, after having well guarded the surrounding parts with court plaster.

Take the scrapings of a silverware fork, a few Sansevieria leaves, a half dozen or so some Gold Thread. Put with these a little alum, some vinegar and honey simmer this on hot ashes with a little water. Wet the mouth often. It seldom fails of a cure.

NEW YORK, N.Y., June 10.—The New York Times today published a long article by its London correspondent, Mr. John H. Mears, dealing with the question of the "British Empire." The article was headed "The British Empire," and was signed "J.H.M."

No. 4.—Take prepared chalk, 4 ounces; alum, 9 drachms; cream tartar, 2 ounces; white sugar 1 ounce; cinnamon, 1½ ounces. Mix.

It is a common mistake to think that the word "is" is univocal. In fact, it is used in many different ways. For example, it can be used to denote identity, as in "The cat is black," or it can be used to denote a property, as in "The cat is fat." It can also be used to denote a relation, as in "The cat is on the mat." This is why it is important to be clear about the meaning of the word "is" when we use it in philosophy.
